DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-4, 8-11, 13, 14, 16, and 17 are pending. Claims 1, 2, and 10 have been amended in this communication filed 07/07/07 entered as Amendment After Final and Advisory and RCE with an Extension of Time.
2. The Finality of the Office Action is hereby withdrawn in view of the new Office Action here below.

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

3. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 7/7/07 has been entered.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 1-4, 8-11, and 13-17 are allowed.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: An Internet check payment computer system with a processor computer determining whether check payment for the product should be accepted based on the probability of the payment being honored, produces and authorization indication, and upon the authorization indication indicating that check payment should be accepted, transmits the authorization indication to the merchant computer and generates a printed check with the customer's name, the third party bank name, a check amount, and bank routing information. Even though, the prior art teaches an internet check payment computer system with a processor computer for check payment for the product, the prior art fails to teach or render obvious the instant invention which appears to be beyond the skill of one of ordinary skill in the art. Accordingly the invention would NOT have been obvious because one of ordinary skill could not have been expected to achieve the method of an Internet check payment computer system with a processor computer determining whether check payment for the product should be accepted based on the probability of the payment being honored, produces and authorization indication, and upon the authorization indication indicating that check payment should be accepted, transmitting the authorization indication to the merchant computer and generating a printed check with the customer's name, the third party bank name, a check amount, and bank routing information, NOR would they have been able to predict the results, and as such, they would have had no capability of expecting success. For these reasons claim 1 is deemed allowable over the prior art of record, and claims 2-4, 8-11, 13, 14, 16, and 17 are allowed by dependency.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Conclusion

Art Unit: 3694

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

John Doggett; "Electronic Checks-A Detailed Preview" disclosed making a purchase with an electronic check.

Wallys W. Conhaim; "E-Commerce: Link-up"; disclosed Internet shopping and using CyberCash.

Stinson et al (US 6,856,965) disclosed a check reader configured to receive and read a check to be processed and the capability to determine whether to accept or reject the check.

Doggett et al. (US 5,677,955) disclosed check imaging which involves the scanning of a paper check by a scanner which digitizes the image and stores it electronically in memory and can be substituted for the physical delivery of the check to truncate the clearing process.

Nickols et al. (US 2001/0037299) disclosed electronic and "paperless" reliance on accepting and processing commercial bank drafts and the physical handling of bank drafts, and transactions where the consumer prepares a paper check with the consumer retaining the "paper" check as an additional receipt proceeding the electronic transaction.
